Cal quarterback Gary Graumann (right) was named by his teammates the first recipient of the Joe Roth Award of Honor last week at Cal's football team banquet. The award, funded by a private donor and given to Newman Hall, was presented to Graumann by Father Don Baxter (left) of Newman Hall.

"This award serves a dual purpose," Baxter said in his presentation. "It serves to remember Joe, but it also tries to recognize someone here now . . . that embodies similar qualities that he had. Someone with an unpretentious, yet deep and strong faith that allows him to face difficult situations with courage."

The criteria for the selection was based upon the example set by the late Cal quarterback: someone with an unpretentious, yet strong and deep faith that allows him to face difficult situations with courage; to think of others, not just himself.
